

CLAIMS

What is claimed is invention number two itself, which is:

1. A TAPE RECORDER COMBINED WITH A
DETATCHABLE TELE-CAM, A PRINTER THAT CAN HEAR AND A TYPE WRITER.

What is claimed under invention number two includes:

2. A device that enables the printer to hear and to capture lectures, speeches, etc.
3. A device that enables the printer to print out information independent of the tape recorder in other words the printer can hear and capture lectures, speeches, etc and print them out without depending on the tape recorder.
4. A device that enables the printer to retain information that it digitally recorded so that it can be printed out later.
5. A device that enables the printer to print out information simultaneously when the tape recorder is recoding.

6. A device that allow the magnification of letters. Words or information before printing them out (this is optional).
7. A detachable Tele-cam – A device that captures slides, displays, pictures, writings, drawing, diagrams, equations like mathematics, physics, chemistry, etc.
8. A device that enables a detachable Tele-cam to print out captured information.
9. A device that enables a detachable Tele-cam to magnify captured information before printing.
10. A device that enables the users to print out information in color or black and white.
11. A paper tray that can be pushed in and pulled out.
12. Built in microphones and megaphones that serve as voice enhancers.
13. Built in amplifiers to amplify voices.
14. Voice silencer to enable the printer to print without noice.
15. A device that enables printing of recorded items from any source, once the tape of the recorded information is inserted into the tape recorder.

16. A device that enables classroom companion to record, or capture speeches, lectures, etc. in international languages of the world that are used in the classroom and print them out.